

ISTJ

(RESPONSIBLE REALIST)

E: 9 // I: 18

S: 14 // N: 11

T: 10 // F: 8

J: 16 // P: 4

Characteristics

ISTJs respect facts and rely on internal Sensing, drawing on a rich store of information to understand the present. They are likely to be:

- Practical, sensible, and realistic
- Systematic

They use Thinking to make objective, logical decisions, focusing on tasks and systems more than individuals. They tend to be:

- Logical and analytical
- Detached and reasonable

ISTJs form firm opinions through careful, logical application of experience and knowledge. They value standard procedures and support change only when facts show it will bring better results.

How others may view them

ISTJs are sociable in familiar roles but share their deep observations and memories only with close friends. Others notice their standards, structure, and order, but not always their private, sometimes humorous side. Though slow to accept needs different from their own, once convinced something matters to someone they care about, they commit fully—even if it doesn't make sense to them.

Others usually see ISTJs as:

- Calm, reserved, and serious
- Consistent and orderly
- Respectful of traditions

Areas for Growth

If ISTJs don't develop Sensing, they may rush into premature decisions without considering new data. If they don't develop Thinking, they may rely too heavily on memories and internal impressions.

When unable to use their strengths, they may:

- Become rigid about time, rules, and procedures
- Be critical or judgmental
- Struggle to delegate or trust others

Neglecting Intuition and Feeling can lead them to:

- Miss long-term consequences
- Overemphasize logic at the expense of people
- Fail to meet others' needs for connection

When stressed, ISTJs may lose their calm judgment and imagine negative possibilities about both present and future.